Possible Extension to South Sudan (November 08 - November 10, 2024)

This tour is Shangri-La for those who dare to break the mold of conventional travel and is certainly the 'road less traveled' for explorers. Eritrea, on the shores of the Red Sea, has a history dating back to the Stone Age, but the country has only been internationally recognized since 1993, following a succession of wars with Ethiopia that spanned thirty years. Asmara, the capital, proudly displays a shining collection of Art Deco, and other, architectural wonders. Massawa, a port city on the Red Sea, is the starting point for visits to the Dhalak Islands, one of the most unspoiled and least known reefs in the area. The major highlight of Eritrea is the colorful diversity of the nine ethnic groups that live within it. Somaliland should not be confused with Somalia; visitors are welcome here. In addition, Somaliland is home to one of the greatest treasures of the Horn of Africa: the 10,000-year-old Laas Geel cave paintings, which were discovered by a French archaeological team in 2002. Djibouti draws few tourists thanks to its reputation for being the hottest place in Africa (probably true) and for being ridiculously overpriced (probably true). However, with vistas that will take your breath away, a culture caught halfway between 20th century France and modern-day Africa, and the opportunity to swim with whale sharks, the smallest country in the region is definitely worth a visit. Many of you have joined us on Ethiopian tours in previous years, but most likely, you have not visited Harar, a gem of a city in Eastern Ethiopia.

Harar is a well-preserved walled city that stands to the east of the Great Rift Valley. It was founded between the 7th and 11th centuries and emerged as the center of Islamic culture and religion in the Horn of Africa. The city contains 99 mosques, including the 16th century Grand Mosque, as well as over 100 shrines, and a colorful, vibrant marketplace. The surrounding Ahmar Mountains are where Ethiopia's best coffee is produced. Join us on an unforgettable adventure in this fascinating part of the world.

Special Tour Remarks:

These countries are poor, and the tourism infrastructure is lacking in many areas. Some meals may be simple, food may be slow coming, some hotels will be basic (even those considered to be the best in the area) and you may encounter issues like: power outages, lack of hot water, poor internet service etc.). Some roads are in need of re-paving; some sites can be closed without prior notification. These drawbacks require a sense of tolerance and acceptance, and visitors are reminded that they are pioneering in uncharted terrain, and this is the real attraction of these destinations. In addition, the internal flights are unpredictable and could be cancelled at the last minute or rescheduled and thus require flexibility and humor, and sometimes the purchasing of new tickets. Please be aware: If additional expenses are incurred due to situations beyond the control of Spiekermann Travel, all travelers will be asked to cover their own extra costs. This journey is an adventure for those prepared to accept some uncertainties as well as gain the rewards of travel to a region where Americans are seldom seen. The trip also requires participants to be in a fit physical condition and able to walk, climb and endure sightseeing in the heat (usually between upper 80's to mid-90's during the day). By joining this tour, you fully accept the conditions explained above and agree to abide by a spirit of adventure and flexibility throughout the tour.
